LURLINE'S OWNER SAYS HE IS CONFIDENT OF BEING VICTOR

The Lurline, which will be the most formidable competitor, in all probability, which the Hawaii will have to go up against in the Trans-Pacific Yacht Race, is referred to by the Los Angeles Times as follows:

The representation of Southern California and the South Coast Yacht Club is now assured in the Trans-Pacific Race from San Pedro to Honolulu through the formal entry of the Lurline by ex-Commodore H. H. Sinclair. Los Angeles has full confidence in the ability of this boat to win the coming race as easily as she did the previous one, and from July 4 until July 20 the eyes of the yachting world will be turned toward the Pacific.

A full crew has been put aboard the Lurline and overhauling is now in progress. Her sails are to be re-cut, probably by a sail-maker from San Francisco, an Lewey, the resident sail-maker, is very sick. The Lurline distanced her competitors in the last race, but this race should be a more lively contest, as the Hawaii, the Honolulu boat, and Gwendolyn II of Seattle have been constructed with the race particularly in mind. Lady Maud of San Diego has entered also, but she has been constructed for several years. The schooner Aggie of San Francisco, a leader among the fast ones for the last twenty years, may also enter.

The start will be July 4, across a line between the end of the San Pedro breakwater and Dead Man's Island, thence around a stakeboat off Long Beach, and from this mark the boats will bear away on their course to Diamond Head.

The South Coast Club is offering two cups as first and second prizes in the Honolulu race. The first prize will be a $500 cup and the second a $250 cup, and the final selection of designs will be made June 1.

GDWENDOLYN HAD STORM

Sure enough, the Gwendolyn II ran into a gale on her trip down the Coast from Seattle, bound for San Francisco, and for over sixty hours the little craft was hove to off Cape Mendocino, with the waves breaking over her. News of the rough trip comes by the San Francisco exchanges. The Bulletin was the first local paper to publish, through another source, the fact that this craft probably encountered rough weather on her trip out of Seattle.

F. Guerrero, the crack first baseman of the Sweet Violets, played a fine game on the Hecla grounds last Sunday.

GLAY BIRDS WILL FALL TOMORROW AND THURSDAY

Tomorrow the Hawaiian Gun Club will hold its championship shoot at Kakaako traps, to be followed on Thursday by the semi-annual prize shoot of the club. The championship match will be a scratch affair, each man going twenty birds. This is twice the number used in the regular weekly shoots of the club. Harvey looks like a winner this time, as he has had no competitor who gave him any trouble through the weekly shoots this year, among the scratch men.

The semi-annual prize shoot, tenth of its kind, is in charge of the house committee, which is making great preparations for the event. A great number of a good diversity of events has been arranged, promising good sport to all lovers of the rifle.

The club will have its unknown-angles shoot on the 17th.

ALOHA EXPLORE HO TONG

There was no trouble at the meeting of the Chinese Alohas last Sunday evening, as was expected. Everything went along smoothly and all of those attending enjoyed it. It was one of the best-attended meetings for some time, and President John Akana stated after the meeting that good prospects are ahead.

The most important matter brought up was whether Ho Tong should remain a member. The President thought that Ho should be expelled as soon as possible, as he said that Ho was unfit to be affiliated with the club. After talking for about half an hour the members decided to give him a "pass." The secretary was instructed to notify him of the club's action. His offense consists in advertising a "hard times" dance, under the auspices of the Alohas, without authorization.

That Ho Tong is about to organize another club under the same name to join the Kalaianaoles League is generally stated among the Aloha fans lately.

YACHTS RACE SATURDAY

Entries must be made with H. P. Roth before noon Thursday.

Scorer Raposo quit the Riverside League because of insufficient compensation.
